

TARIFF PICTURES.

The purpose of the Tariff Reform Club is to bring a deluge of pauper made foreign goods to this country. For example, its latest prepared Tariff bill would increase imports of wool manufactures from $35,702,900 to $75,000,000 the valuation of last year's imports, to the first year after its enactment. The bill does not inform the working people employed in this industry where they are to find work when the goods they now make are supplied from Europe.

CURIOSITY SEEKERS.

Hundreds of people at Chicago will fall over each other to get a glance of the Gospel in the Syrian text who never look at an English copy of the New Testament.

LOOKING AROUND.

St. Louis Globe-Democrat.—Mr. McKinley dropped casually into the White House yesterday, but he may in 1896 be directed by the people to take up his quarters there for a few years.

RIGHTS OF WORKINGMEN.

Indianapolis Journal.—The inalienable right of every man to work is quite as important as the inalienable right to quit work. It is absurd to maintain the latter while denying the former. The non-Union man has the same right before the law as the Union man.

IMITATING BUCHANAN.

Utica Herald.—President Harrison, actuated by the American idea, encouraged onward the fair dominion of our flag in its genuine affectionate choice and adoption by the people of Hawaii. His successor is the first of our Presidents, since the flag and the Union it covers were assailed to the death, who has taken no active part in defending the Union and the honor of its flag. The last Democratic President before him is remembered for nothing else than his indifference whether the flag was hauled down or not.

A DEMOCRATIC VIEW OF OLNEY.

Chicago Record.—Mr. Cleveland is a slow-going, if steady-paced, reformer. It is to be presumed that he intends to make good the pledges as to the "rigid enforcement of the law concerning trusts." If such be his purpose he does not disclose it, nor is it manifested in the character of the man at the head of his law department. Attorney General Olney has not as yet acquired fame as the enemy of trusts. On the other hand, he is allied to them by many ties that are not likely to be impaired by his acceptance of the high office to which he has been called.

RENDERS AMERICANS CONTEMPTIBLE.

Pittsburgh Press.—This is a country that produces politicians instead of statesmen. There is James H. Blount of Georgia, who was sent to Honolulu with power to do as he pleased, and the first thing he did was to pull down the American flag and order the United States marines aboard ship. This action should excite the indignation of the whole Nation. Its effect is to bring the American flag and the American people into contempt, not only in the eyes of the residents of the Hawaiian Islands, but of the whole world.

CLEVELAND'S COMMISSIONER.

Chicago Inter Ocean.—Mr. Blount does not seem to be acting as United States Commissioner, but as Mr. Cleveland's Commissioner to the Hawaiian Islands. The people of the United States are not more in love with the decrepit royalty of Hawaii than with the vigorous absolutism of Russia; rather less so, for in Hawaii there is a young and healthy democracy, informed of American ideas, that is in revolt, and successful revolt, against the feeble and useless monarchy. That young and healthy democracy desires to affiliate the Hawaiian Nation with this Republic. Mr. Cleveland's "My Commissioner" is the first American to chill the Hawaiian democracy and to revive the drooping spirits of Hawaiian royalty.

WASHINGTON AND LINCOLN.

The London News and Post seldom has anything kind to say for Americans, but it could not withhold an expression of disappointment at the fact that the rank of Ambassador was not first bestowed on the son of Abraham Lincoln. The News and Post says:

The independence of the United States was not formally recognized by England until 1783, so that there has been an American Minister accredited to the Court of St. James for just one hundred and ten years. The first bore the distinguished name of Adams, and subsequently filled the Presidential chair. It is a matter of some regret that the first American Ambassador could not have been the respected son of the illustrious Lincoln, who ranks only second to Washington in the estimation of Englishmen as well as in that of his own countrymen.

It is true that to have appointed Mr. Lincoln Ambassador would have been a graceful act on the part of Mr. Cleveland and would have also been a grateful act to the millions of loyal Americans who honor Robert Lincoln both on account of his own eminent worthiness and the incomparable services of his illustrious father to the Republic and to mankind.

This is quite an honor, and all the more complimentary because it was unsolicited.

GAINED THEIR LIBERTY.

EIGHT JAIL PRISONERS MAKE A BREAK FOR FREEDOM.

Four Are Afterward Captured—Robert McNeely, Turnkey, Knocked Down—Estill and Vaughn Among the Number.

There was much commotion in and about the County Jail, and on the streets and alleys adjacent thereto, at the noon hour Saturday. In fact the whole city was in more or less of an uproar.

The cause of the unusual uproar and disturbance was the escape of eight prisoners from the jail, three white and five colored. The whites were William Estill and William Vaughn, famous locally as the check forgers, and Jeff Clayton, in for house-breaking. The colored men were Bob Warner, larceny; Charles Gantz, grand larceny; William Brooks, house-breaking; William Smith, grand larceny, and Mark Middleton, shooting with intent to kill. The four latter were captured and returned to jail.

The escape was well planned and neatly executed. To Estill is given the credit for the job. His is considered by the officials, to have been the master mind which conceived and matured the delivery.

All those who gained their freedom were county prisoners, and were confined in the upper tier or story of the jail. They are allowed the freedom of the upper corridor during the day, but are not allowed down stairs where the city prisoners are kept. Behind iron bars and massive locks they were thought to be secure. But Estill, or some other mind with a mechanical turn, was equal to the occasion. It was thought by some that keys were made by one of the prisoners out of a spoon, which easily opened the big locks, two of them.

The opening of one of these locks was a feat which Jailer Kirk could not perform the day before with a key which was made to fit the thing. Locksmith Ryan was brought in and he could not make it work, but promised to come back the next day, and advised the use of another lock. The prisoners probably overheard this, and knew the time for action had arrived. The above theory was first advanced, but Jailer Kirk thought otherwise. Later investigations by Mr. Kirk proved almost conclusively that a saw was used. A quantity of iron dust, such as made by a saw or file, was found on the floor. Mr. Kirk immediately offered a reward of $50 for every one captured.

When Turnkey Robert McNeely started in to give the city prisoners their dinner at 12 o'clock the gang was ready for him. They had all come down stairs and were in waiting, and as Mr. McNeely opened the door leading into the jail he was quickly overpowered and eight birds went forth to liberty. The Turnkey was knocked down and the cook, Frank Williams, colored, was also downed and tramped on in the rush.

The prisoners scattered after getting out, but the high hills back of the city were the objective points of all. The chase was quickly begun, and every available peace officer in the city—Sheriffs, Policemen and Constables—were soon on horseback and scouring the turnpikes and crossroads in every direction. Jailer Kirk and Deputy Sheriff Perrine caught Gantz, Brooks and Smith after about two hours on the Kreitz farm on the Hill City pike, about two miles from the city. They were in hiding behind a stone wall, and made an unconditional surrender to Deputy Sheriff Perrine at his command.

Estill and Warner were also seen by Jailer Kirk in the same neighborhood, but a wide expanse of territory and intervening wire fences prevented their capture.

Mark Middleton was caught about 4 o'clock by Chief Fitzgerald and Policemen Stockdale on the farm of John Chambers on the Kenton Station pike, about three miles from Maysville. Captain Fitzgerald had quite a chase after him across an open field, and three shots from his revolver only accelerated the darkey's speed. He finally sank into a fence corner, where he was found by Officer Stockdale. "Is yo' lookin' fuh me, Mister Barney?" he said, and yielded without a struggle.

Vaughn seems to have gone toward the West. He was seen on the Wadsworth farm. Charles Davis and Mr. Viceroy started him from a brush pile and he was seen last in the jungles on Lawrence creek.

Estill will be remembered as the man who was arrested while trying to pass a forged check in payment for some shoes in the store of J. H. Pecor. He claimed that William Vaughn had written the checks, several of which were found in his possession, and Vaughn was shortly after also arrested. Both had been indicted by the Grand Jury and were awaiting trial. Clayton is charged with breaking into Helmer's saloon, and Warner was caught in the act of stealing from the freight depot of the L. and N. some weeks ago.

Telegrams were sent to all neighboring towns and cities, but four are still at large. An arrest made at Ripley Saturday night proved of no value.

JEFFREYS LEWIS drew a fair sized audience to the Opera-house Saturday night. Her play, "Society's Half World," was something new on the Maysville stage. Miss Lewis's acting is pronounced of a high order.

Saxby as a Lecturer.

Clermont Courier.—Howard Saxby, the Cincinnati editor, humorist, poet and lecturer, is rapidly rising into greater prominence. He can write anything and can say anything. Everybody reads everything he writes and would like to hear everything he says. This is not true of any other man. He deals in the business of producing both laughter and tears. He can bring tears to all eyes and can wipe them away from all faces. He can cause great tears to roll down one of your cheeks while he spreads a broad grin over the other. He speaks a long time, but never too long.

Mr. Saxby will make his first appearance before a Maysville audience at Masonic Temple to-morrow evening. Tickets 50 cents, on sale at the Drugstores and at Peed & Dry's, and proceeds for benefit of Masonic Library.

Mothers' Recommendation.

We are acquainted with many mothers in Centerville who would not be without Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in the house for a good many times its cost, and are recommending it every day. From personal experience we can say that it has broken up bad colds for our children.—Centerville (South Dakota) Citizen. Fifty cent bottles for sale by Power & Reynolds, druggists.
